Was it Murder?

Chihuahua, Mex. April 29. — An American named Charles W. Henderson, who is said to have rich mining interest in the San Juan district of Colorado, arrived here about two weeks ago. He was on his way to the Batopilas mining camp, in the heart of the Sierra Madre mountains, in the southwest corner of Chihuahua. After spending three days here he left for that camp on a burro, accompanied by a Mexican as guide.

The Mexican returned last night, bring the first intelligence received here of the tragic death of Henderson. He says that they were about ninety miles southwest of here and were preparing to camp late one evening in the bottom of a deep gulch, when a mountain lion sprang from the rocks above upon Henderson.

The battle was a terrible one between the man and brute and resulted in a victory for the latter. The Mexican made his escape during the fight. The authorities have ordered an investigation of this story, which is generally disbelieved. It is thought that Henderson was murdered by his guide.

A Sad Death.

THE FISH COMMISSIONER.

He Explains His Position in Regard to Fish Laws.

Geo. T. Mills the Nevada Fish Commissioner was interviewed at length yesterday concerning his powers as a Fish Commissioner. He quoted the law to the writer in all matters pertaining to the construction of fish ways and ladders in which he throws considerable light on the subject, of late causing so much discussion among fishermen.

The law at present is in a state of incompleteness and until amended will not permit him to act as he desires for the best interests of the fishermen of this State. He says: "I am willing to do anything to improve the condition of our streams and lakes and further protection of all varieties of fish."

"Some people seem to think I am not at all interested in the protection of catfish and perch but this is most decidedly an error. I realize that many men take as much pleasure catching these fish as they do trout and inasmuch as they are entitled to some privileges, you can state that I am prepared to give all protection in my power to any kind of food fish which swim in Nevada waters, but I do not believe that I should be held responsible for defects in the statutes. You will see by the law enacted in 1877, which has not since been amended, entitled "An Act to provide for the preservation of fish in the waters of this State," that I am not empowered to gratify all wishes."

It reads: Sec. 1—"He may also employ persons skillful and expert in the business of fish breeding and may superintend and direct the construction of fish ways and ladders that may be built in the streams and waters of this State."

He continued: "You will see by that I am not instructed to build these fish ways and ladders, but merely to superintend their construction if they should be built."

"The purpose of the law has been carried out as far as I am concerned, beyond which I cannot consistently go."

"In regard to the screen question at the mouths of ditches, canals etc., I will give you information sufficient to satisfy any man that I am anxious to do the correct thing."

"In Assembly bill 86 introduced in the Legislature March 4th, 1891, drawn up by myself, there was a strong clause, with sufficient penalty, compelling persons, firms and corporations to place at the mouths of said ditches, canals etc., a wire screen of sufficient strength and quality to prevent any fish entering said ditch, canal etc., but it was stricken out in the Assembly, which action was the absolute destruction of the bill from a protection standpoint."

"The Washoe lake canal dam is not constructed so that fish can be held back, as the outlet is at the bottom of the dam instead of at the top. In consequence the suction draws all fish within a radius of twenty feet into the vortex to be carried out into the irrigating ditch below the dam. These fish by the way are not altogether lost as the majority find their way to Pyramid lake through Steamboat creek and Truckee river. What should be done is to place a screen some distance above the dam, where the suction is nominal and the fish could then be held in Washoe lake."

"This may be done later by subscription from different sporting clubs, from Washoe, Ormsby and Storey counties, and when the time comes I will gladly superintend the construction in a proper manner."

The Ormsby.

Gray & Moore, proprietors of the Ormsby, are making substantial improvements, and giving such good satisfaction that they have decided to serve meals day and night. Under the new management it is destined to become a popular house.

The Last Rites.

Mrs. James Morris was laid to rest in the Empire cemetery yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The hearse left the family residence at 2:30 followed by the longest line of carriages ever seen in the riverside town. During the day the remains were viewed by the friends of the deceased who passed to and fro by the flowered bier with sorrowful faces and tearful eyes. Willing hands dropped wreaths on and near the coffin of the dead, and the grief stricken family were assured by words of kindness that the wife and mother was loved by all who knew her while in life. A large number of people from Carson were in attendance and the services were conducted by Father Cline of this city. He delivered the regular sermon at the house and an eloquent sermon at the grave touching upon the countless excellent qualities and charities of the deceased whose life was full of good doing towards the world.

When the deceased was 15 years old she left Queenstown Ireland for America on board the Ocean Monarch. The steamer was out but a few hours when it took fire and 150 lives were lost before help arrived. Among the few saved was the late Mrs. Morris who clung to the burning ropes with the hot tar running down her arms and when rescued by the Prince De Joinville who sighted the burning vessel from his pleasure yacht which happened in the vicinity, she was perfectly helpless. She was taken back to Queenstown and the following year safely made the trip. This happened in the year 1848 and her escape has been the means of giving to the world a good Christian being and the mother of four young women and a grown up son to honor and love her name.

Deep sympathy is felt for them in their sorrow and the entire community mourns with them.

Two Suicides.

St. Louis, Mo., April 29.—A. K. Florida, senior member of the real estate firm of Florida, Hammet & Crowwhite, committed suicide yesterday afternoon. Prussic acid was the poison used. He swallowed the entire contents of an ounce bottle, enough to have killed a regiment, for two or three drops will cause death! He dropped as though struck by lightning. Death was instantaneous. Business difficulties are supposed to have been the cause of his suicide.

New York, April 29.—This morning Benjamin Buchanan, 70 years old, one of the court officers of the Supreme Court, cut his throat on the roof of his residence, at 108 West Washington street and then jumped into the street. He was instantly killed.

Adjourned Sine Die.

Ogden, U. T., April 28.—At yesterday afternoon's session of the Trans-Mississippi Congress the question of the admission of New Mexico, Arizona and Utah to the Union occupied the entire time and resolutions were presented favoring the same. The night session was addressed by Senator Warren of Wyoming on the arid land question. Other speeches were made by Governor Shortridge of North Dakota and Governor Osborn of Wyoming. At the close of the evening session the congress adjourned sine die.
